5.3 Special New Innovative Initiatives or Ideas Adopted

5.4.1 UpgradationofCollegeLibraryintoaPublicLibrary

The college library has been upgraded to a public library offering several significant benefits to both the institution and the community. Many students from outside the institution are currently making use of our library. Additionally, our fully digitized library system enables students to search for relevant books from the comfort of their homes. Orientation sessions are also conducted to help students learn how to use online resources effectively.

Benefits:

1. Localresidentsgainaccesstoeducationalmaterials,fosteringacultureofreadingand continuous learning beyond formal education.
2. Librariesoftenhaveunderusedbooks,journals,andspaces.Openingthemtothepublic ensures fuller use of existing resources.

5.4. 2 CreationofDay Care Room

Inordertofacilitatethewomenatworkplaceduringworkinghours,a day care room for women has been created at the college. Additionally, many students (feeding mothers) appearing for masters' exams or their women attendants are making use of the day care facility.

Benefits:

1. A day care room for female faculty in a college offers a vital support system, enabling academic professionals to balance work and family responsibilities effectively.

2. This facility provides a safe, nurturing environment on campus where children can be supervised by other female staff during working hours.

3. As a result, faculty members can devote more attention to teaching, research, and administrative duties with peace of mind.

4. This facility has also helped a number of married students to complete their education and take up exams.

5. Day care rooms directly contribute to increased job satisfaction, higher retention, and productivity among female faculty, making the institution more inclusive and attractive to new talent.

6. Ultimately, a day care room fosters a supportive campus culture where faculty members can thrive personally and professionally.

5.4.3 Sit Out Study Area

The college has developed sit-out study areas in the rear courtyards of the New Block of the college to provide students with a calm and open environment for academic engagement.These study spaces contribute to a learner-friendly campus that supports both academic performance and emotional health. The institution plans to enhance the 'Sit Out Study' area into an 'Open Air Library' soon.

Benefits:

1. The sit-out areas offer a peaceful space away from classrooms and hostels, supporting focused reading, revision, and group discussions.

2. Greenery and open surroundings create a refreshing atmosphere that enhances concentration and reduces academic stress.

3. Students can engage in peer discussions and collaborative study in an informal yet productive setting.

4. Exposure to natural light and open spaces promotes mental relaxation and overall well-being.
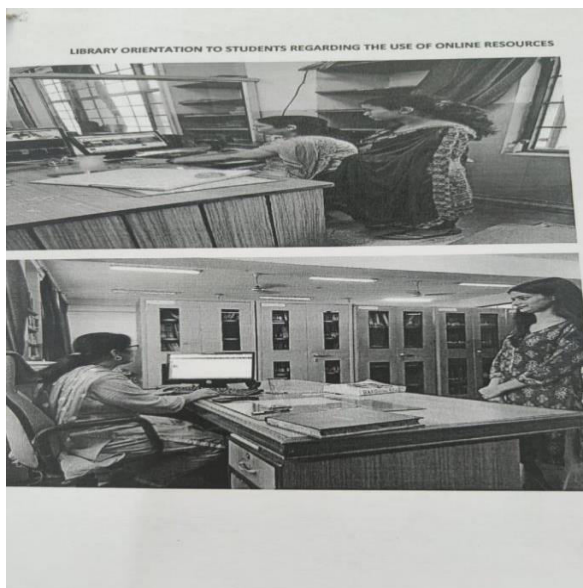

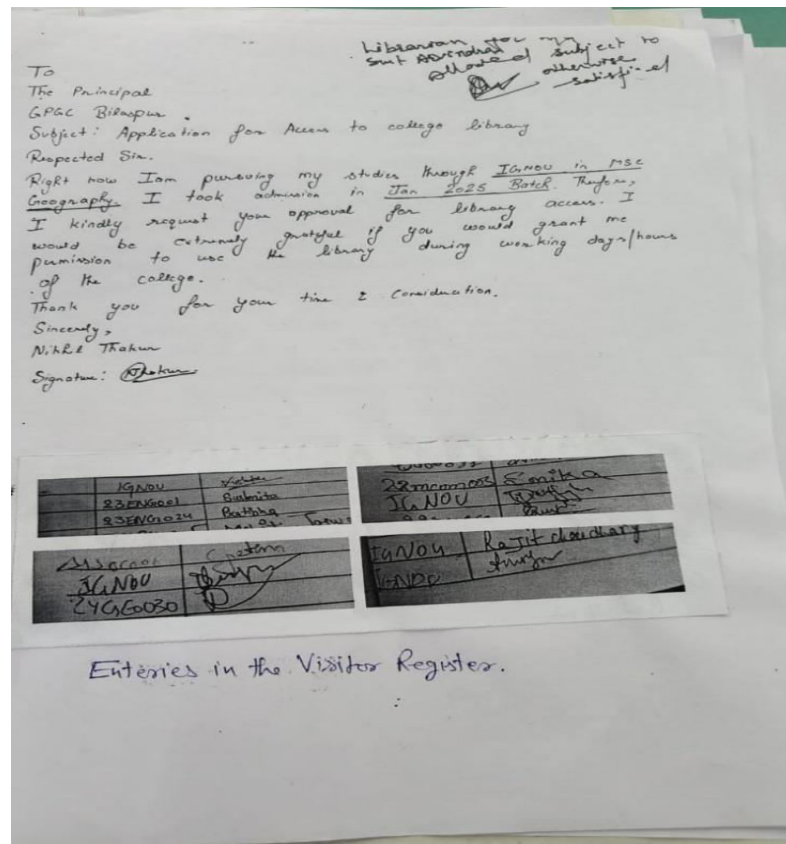

5.4.4 Wall-cum-Bulletin Boards

The institution has innovatively developed its boundary wall into a wall-cum-bulletin board, transforming a structural element into an effective academic and communication resource. These boundary wall-cum-bulletin board stands as an example of functional innovation, combining information dissemination, institutional branding, student orientation, and campus beautification, thereby contributing significantly to the distinctive identity of the college.

Benefits:

1. Display of the college motto, vision, and mission reinforces institutional values and goals among students and stakeholders on a daily basis.

2. Information about courses, clubs, and societies enables students to make informed choices regarding academic pathways and co-curricular participation.

3. The wall serves as a permanent and easily accessible information platform, reducing dependence on temporary notices and verbal communication.

4. Highlighting the activities and objectives of various clubs and societies encourages wider student participation in extension and cultural activities.

5. Artistic layouts, structured displays, and vibrant colours contribute to the aesthetic enhancement of the campus boundary, creating a welcoming and lively environment.

6. The conversion of the boundary wall into an informative display ensures productive use of existing infrastructure without additional construction.
